

Defense Council Learns of Illegal Forms Distributed

Chairman Thomas A. Horton of the Kingston Defense Council said today that it had been brought to his attention that unauthorized individuals may have been distributing copies of the metal working facilities survey form to manufacturers.

The obvious purpose of such activity, if any, was to enable these individuals later to approach prime contractors to interest them in sub-contracting for a commission.

Chairman Horton announced that the local defense council had appointed Harry Kachigian, clerk of the Kingston Industrial Bureau, as its representative authorized to distribute these survey forms to local manufacturers.

Only authorized persons of local defense councils, the state defense council, and the division of state planning are to be received in this defense work.

The completed questionnaires are on file at the office of the Kingston Industrial Bureau in the city hall where they are kept as strictly confidential matter, and only properly authorized persons and members of the local defense council will be permitted to solicit this information.

Utah Pioneer Keeps Pace With Modern Progress

SALT LAKE CITY.—"A lot of people are dying around 67, but not many over 90," muses W. B. Richards Sr. as he sweeps the snow off his front sidewalk. He himself is older than the city in which he lives.

Richards, the son of one of the men who accompanied Brigham Young when he first viewed this valley, was born in 1847 in a Nebraska settlement—Winter Quarters—where the Mormons camped until spring.

He was a year and a half old when he followed his father, Willard Richards—second counselor in the L. D. S. Church to Brigham Young—into the then small but thriving community.

Richards has kept pace with modern developments that have come to the Utah capital. "I like to drive a car," says the spry nonagenarian. However, he hastens to add, he hasn't driven for a "long time"—not since he was 80.

Explorer—democratic model

BY NORMAN CHANDLER, CHAIRMAN, NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS COMMITTEE

YOU are an explorer, modern 1941 American model. You go about your own private affairs. The world is brought to you, revealed to you in your own armchair.

But you keep the power, the CONTROL of things. How? Why can you RELAX, yet know every fact and opinion that circulates here or abroad?

You give to your NEWSPAPERS the job of "EXPLORING" FOR YOU. It is their task to STAND GUARD, to WATCH, to REPORT, to explain as clearly and quickly as they can what goes on in the world around you.

They watch the city hall, the county courthouse, the state capitol, Washington, the market places, the capitals of the world—to report both THE GOOD AND THE BAD DEEDS of those in places of trust.

You, by yourself, could never do all this. While you watched in ONE quarter, some political scoundrel or some crooked confidence man might rob you in ANOTHER. Or, just as likely, some heroic stand in your behalf might FAIL because you did not hear of it in time to lend your support!

You give to your newspapers the job of watching and reporting on business, on education, on religion—even on nature itself! What would a newspaper be without the weather report, the news of human behavior, the news of new thoughts, new discoveries, new values and worth-

But, you may ask, can I TRUST my NEWSPAPER?

Burn this truth into your mind:

So long as all men are free to speak their minds, put their thoughts into printed words, the truth will out. Let one misled or misinformed paper bring a false report, and another will refute it. Let one advertiser misstate his claims, and his competitors will bring him to task.

Only in a dictatorship, where government controls what men may see and hear, can the truth be concealed. Where freedom of expression holds, facts will rule. Opinions may vary, in America, but not even one—the most stupid one—of America's newspapers will knowingly report a lie as a fact.

Why? Because America is FREE. Some other paper or some other person will inevitably discover the error and, being free, use it to shame the erring paper for its dereliction.

Please, America, keep it this way. Keep your papers free—free to criticize, free to praise, free to report to you what honest eyes see. For in a democracy, a modern, busy, complex form of life, your own safety, your own freedom depend on THIS KIND OF FREEDOM FOR YOUR NEWSPAPERS.

FEAR AND HATE

When you stand off and take a good look at present-day Germany, the most appalling thing about the Reich, perhaps, is its friendlessness. That is, not in a technical or military sense, but a human sense.

Russia and Italy and Japan are rated as friends, but their friendship is merely that of assistant-burglars who hope to get some of the loot. It is well known that none of them like or trust Hitler's Germany.

There was considerable friendliness toward Germany on the part of Norway, Holland, Denmark and other little neighbors that were bound to pre-Hitler Germany by ties of trade and culture, but that is all gone now. Even Sweden stands aloof as much as she dares; such cooperation as she shows is based on fear.

Likewise the sympathies of the Balkan countries are alienated. They obey and cooperate to some extent, where they are powerless to do otherwise. But their hearts and minds are far from the admiration they felt in the old days when German culture was strong in Europe. Now there is only fear and hate.

No friends, no culture, no advance in the humane arts and sciences, no share in internationalism and world unity that are so ardently desired by enlightened spirits of present-day civilization—only a hard and cruel militarism that threatens the finest flower of the centuries!

This is the blight that the great little man, Adolf Hitler, with the help of thousands of ambitious flatterers, has brought upon the Fatherland and is trying to spread over the world.

POWER FOR FARM AND FACTORY

In the years between 1930 and 1940 the percentage of American farms equipped with electric service rose from 10.3 to 32.6. That remarkable gain was made during the worst depression time. Both the Rural Electrification Administration and the private power companies contributed to the development.

Specific gains in certain states are striking. In Illinois, where 54.3 per cent of the farms are not yet reached by power lines, the number so served rose from 22,699 in 1930 to 97,453 in 1940. The jump in Arkansas, on a percentage basis, was from 1.3 to 9.2. In Tennessee, through TVA, electrification of farms jumped from 3.1 to 17.1 in the ten-year period.

The purpose behind much of the special drive toward electrification was the benefit of the "little fellow." Well, he has been greatly helped, but the expansion of electrical service has also helped large-scale industries now turning their energies to national defense work.

There is no need of straining to point a moral here. But citizens interested in proof that the good of the nation is tied up with the welfare of all its parts, the least as well as the greatest, take satisfaction in the electrical history of the last decade.

SO IT'S SPRING!

There is always a good deal of argument about the exact time of the arrival of spring. Persons inclined to be technical in such matters insist that it arrived this year at exactly 21 minutes past 7 o'clock on the evening of March 20. The temperature and the ice under foot have nothing to do with it, they say. Only the stars and the calendar may be trusted.

Gardeners, on the other hand, insist that spring comes when the first vegetation pokes green shoots through the snow or mud. Bird lovers know of its arrival when they hear the first songs of the returning migrants or behold a robin redbreast. Children know it is spring when sleds go into storage and kites, marbles, jumping ropes, tops and baseballs appear.

The great thing isn't so much when it comes as the fact that it always does come, surely if slowly. Human beings quickly forget the skating, skiing and coasting they enjoyed a few weeks back and think only of the long annoying weeks of tending furnace, shoveling snow from sidewalks and trying to get the car started. How they hate winter and welcome spring! They may be able to feel a thrill or two at sight of the first snow next winter, but the last snow of the winter just passing is never a treat to anybody.

FEEDING FREEDOM

Americans are glad to see that $5,000,000 advanced by Washington to Finland, for food. It is bitterly needed. The Finns, normally self-contained, were nearly ruined economically by having to fight Russia last winter, and then having a large piece of their best farming land, with its homes and other improvements, taken from them. They have been able to resettle their evicted farmers and provide homes for them, but were in danger of starving because they had so little chance to raise food last summer.

Added to the balance of their old debt, plus the $30,000,000 of credits extended to them during the Russian war, this makes nearly $40,000,000 that the Finns owe our government. They need it more than we do, and they will pay it back.

Meanwhile Uncle Sam is moved to make loans, or credits, to other small countries naturally congenial with us, to strengthen them against the slave powers. Such help is probably "bread on the waters" that will come back to us after many days. If it is swept away, we shall still have our self-respect.

No, we're not sending non-conformists to concentration camps, but we are expecting them to be good sports and let us go ahead, unhampered, doing the things that have to be done.

It isn't work that wearies a man, explains a venerable clergyman; it's not being able to do your work the way you want to do it.

Pity the war correspondents. They're jailed if they tell the truth, and they're fired by their bosses if they don't.

It doesn't seem right that when there is smokeless powder, there is no invisible lipstick.

Uncle Sam has a new smokeless powder plant, and now watch him smoke!

Uncle Sam is slow to wrath, but devastating when he does bust out.

Once more it's "billions for defense but not one cent for tribute."

TREATING MENTAL PATIENTS

Many years ago one of my relatives was suspected of having cancer of the lower bowel. At operation, it was found that the condition was due to tuberculosis. The operating surgeon stated that the very fact that the bowel was exposed to the air would be sufficient to prevent further development of tuberculosis. This proved to be true.

It would seem that just as exposure to air helped to cure tuberculosis of the bowel, so exposure to the light or to the knowledge of others, of our inward conflicts helps to cure many of us of our mental or behavior problems. If patients are willing to tell their whole story to their physician or to a mental specialist, he can often "unwind the tangled skein" and clear up all the difficulties. It is this secrecy, keeping things hidden from others while the patient lives amid these secret conflicts, fears, anxieties and even sins, that causes his "strange" behavior.

Dr. Paul Schiller in Mental Hygiene speaks of "groups" of mental patients treated together. A number of patients are seen at the one time by the physician and each patient is aware of the problems that are disturbing the other members of the group. About 50 patients with severe behavior disturbances, most of whom had been treated by other methods, were treated by the group method at Bellevue Hospital, New York. Every patient was seen individually before he joined the group and personal interviews were continued aside from the group interviews or treatment. The groups met once or twice a week and consisted of two to seven patients. The life history of the patient was discussed, particularly little odd or strange disturbances which occurred in childhood. After a while, the patient was asked to write down any aspects or phases of his life and his relationship to persons in his world. At the discussions many members of the group will recall similar details and "the relief experienced by them when they find in others the same urges or desires that society or the public shuns or prevents, is remarkable." This "open" or group discussion helped many of these chronic cases.

The old expression "open confession is good for the soul" is really true.

"BY THE DAWN'S EARLY LIGHT"

By Bressler

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Capital topics:

Numerology—Up on Capitol Hill, they call the $7,000,000,000 aid-to-Britain bill the 7-11 bill.

Opponents of the bill are credited with first giving it that title, saying that it means "seven billion now, 11 billion more to come."

Those who favor the bill, however, have appropriated the title, saying it bears those two lucky numbers (ask any craps shooter) because the odds are so greatly in favor of its passage without serious opposition.

Digging into the numbers business, I stumbled across something that the superstitious can play with indefinitely.

The now-famous Lend-Lease bill (H.R. 1776) became Public Law No. 11 and it was signed by President Roosevelt on the 11th day of March.

According to some old-timers who were around at the time, our declaration of war in 1917 was Public Law No. 11.

Tear-jerker—The K.P. (kitchen police) of our 1941 army are finding life a lot different from those whose minor infringements of army regulations earned them a stretch of kitchen duty in earlier days.

For example, peeling piles of potatoes has been a symbol of army punishment for so long that I can't remember when it was any different. Potatoes today are peeled by machines. Dishes are washed by machines. There are mechanical meat choppers and vegetable cutters. But the army hasn't yet found any mechanical substitute for the onion peeler.

It's still a knife-in-hand task for Private Buck—and no matter how you feel about it—it's something for him to cry about.

Unsung Courage—My idea of bravery, nerve and what it takes was demonstrated by that army pilot and his crew who brought down a 22-ton bomber to a perfect landing the other day on an ice-locked Alaska lake.

The boys were ferrying a mess of dog-food to some army muckers who were pushing from Chilkoot to Ladol Field, not far from Fairbanks.

Idling about the war department the other day, I asked an officer who should know if he could give me the names of the pilot and crew. He said: "We don't like to give out information like that. It was just a routine experiment. It might have been any one of hundreds of pilots and crews. It just happened to be this group that got the order."

Parks and Parking—Just when the army and navy had found a use for those World's Fair buses that probably now are rusting away on the shores of Sheephead bay, Harold L. Ickes, that Interior fellow, tossed a monkey wrench into the fly wheels.

The army and navy, with their hundreds and thousands of new workers, are having more trouble finding parking space than a Scotchman in a parking meter city. Finally some bright chap hit on a plan. Why not use government park land in the District of Columbia and in nearby Virginia, buy up the old World's Fair buses and use them to transport the workers between their cars and the munitions buildings? It looked like a natural until they got around to asking Mr. Ickes about using some of his park land.

If you want to hear Harold the Lion-Hearted roar, just try to expropriate some of the park lands. Army and Navy trouble shooters now are working on other solutions to the parking problem.

Mortality Note—From Rep. Luther Patrick: "Most Congressmen, believe it or not, die from heart failure and overwork."

Political Note—From Sen. Robert R. Reynolds: "A man is never dead politically until he quits shaking hands with people."

Men of Title—Army postoffice officials report that if you want to lose your best (or boy) friend in the army, just keep on addressing his mail "Mr. A man in the army is Pvt., Corp., Sgt., Lieut., and so on. Whenever the privates and non-coms gets a letter addressed "Mr.," his buddies never let him forget it, following him around with high pitched, sissified catcalls of "Yoo-hoo, Miss-ster." At one camp nearby, I heard one soldier greet another with, "Hi, Mister," and the reply was, "When you say that, smile."

State Income Tax

Questions Taxpayers Are Asking About Their State Income Tax Returns, Due on or Before April 15, and The Answers

Q—My income is $1,700 and my wife's income is $500. Is a return required to be filed?

A—No. As your combined net income and net capital gain is less than $2,500 and the combined gross income and capital gain is less than $5,000, no return is required to be filed.

Q—I received gross rents in the amount of $10,000. My net profit from the property was $3,000. My wife sustained a loss in the amount of $1,000. Our exemption, with two dependents, is $3,300. Is a return required to be filed?

A—Yes. As your combined gross income is more than $5,000, a return is required regardless of the amount of the net income.

Q—I am employed in a State institution where I receive maintenance. I understand that in computing my gross income for State income tax purposes I am required to include the value of maintenance. Is that correct?

A—Yes. The value of your maintenance must be included in gross income.

At Times Such as These Political Meetings, Though Necessary to Parties, Have Unwelcome Angles

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 25—In the midst of a war crisis, political party meetings have an unwelcome taste, especially when the cry has gone out for national unity. But party organizations must live and continue to function. This week the Republican national committee has met and the Democrats are getting ready for their postponed Jackson day dinner on Saturday night next.

The Republican slogan was expressed by Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr., who is also leader of the Republicans in the House of Representatives. He specifies the Republican task to be "to police and audit the New Deal administration as it reveals in the spending of thirty to forty billion dollars," and thus "protect our country from financial, political and social bankruptcy."

Allowing for the hyperboles of party statements, the fact is that in Britain and in the United States during war times, the opposition party has acted as a useful check on the operations of the party in power.

The need for a check and a check-up is all the more important today in Congress because the New Deal has such an overwhelming majority it sometimes feels it does not need to explain or justify its actions.

There is a more powerful reason—the tendency of certain New Dealers to use the defense billions to further schemes of social reform which have in them more of a desire to get the reform going while the money is available than to help defense.

More denial of an intention to abuse the defense power is not enough. The committees of Congress can determine the truth about defense projects which are started in the name of defense, but are really related to a socialist trend which would have repudiated at the polls in 1940 but for the international situation which gave the New Deal its third term.

Mr. Martin points out that the Republicans carried 1120 and the Democrats carried 936 counties outside the solid South and everywhere else the strength of a political party is to be found in the county seats. The Republicans in 1936 carried only 438 counties. Likewise, the Republican candidates of Congress received 50.3 per cent of the total vote outside the solid South.

This showing, which is far from poor, as, indeed the 22,000,000 votes cast for Willkie indicated, too, is, however, tempered by the fact that the Republicans made a relatively poor showing in the urban areas.

"Our principal weakness is in the large cities," confesses Mr. Martin.

The Republican party will doubtless have a research organization at work and various means of studying public trends. It might well seek to discover why the Republican party failed in the big cities. It would discover perhaps that here the percentage of persons who are deeply interested in the outcome of the European struggle for democracy is so large that it may not have had sufficient confidence in the foreign policy proposals of the Republicans, namely the isolationist spokesmen who were so numerous on the Republican side.

The Republicans, likewise, are weak on the labor issue. They have not yet convinced labor that if elected to office they would not let the pendulum swing too far in the direction of the employer.

The minority party, however, usually benefits from any agitation due to the maladministration of existing law. Thus the strikes in the defense industries and the fact that the Wagner Law has failed to prevent strikes at a critical time will tend to build up a stronger public opinion behind the Republican position on labor than it otherwise would have had in the normal course of events.

It may be that the strikes and the high initiation fees of labor unions will cause a revulsion of feeling toward the continued exercise of labor power without regulation.

The trend in the next campaign may be to urge that monopolies be regulated, whether in the field or labor industry. If abuses should continue in the operation of labor economic power, the workers themselves may revolt against labor chiefs and express dissent at the polls. But it would appear that the Republican party cannot hope to get the workers' vote unless it can assure them that whatever changes are made in existing laws will not really weaken the right of labor to the legitimate exercise of the collective bargaining power free from coercion or intimidation by an employer or anybody else.

The Republicans still have a sharp division in their ranks on foreign policy. Wendell Willkie's position is to continue, but this does not mean that the politicians agree with him. His power over them, if it is to continue, will be the power that a leader maintains who can count on the support of public opinion. If events by the time of the November 1942 Congressional elections have further corroborated the Willkie attitude on foreign policy, he will be an assiduous candidate seeking seats in Congress, but if world events have swung the other way and isolation is popular, the Republican party may be seeking new leaders. Time alone will tell the answer, but at the moment the Republicans of the political group who are here for the national committee meeting observe a necessarily discreet position on foreign policy and the larger issues growing out of the war situation. Man Stands Alone

By Julian Huxley

I often wonder what mysterious something guides the writing hand of men like Julian Huxley, who produce essays over a period of 14 years, and then find suddenly that they add up to a text which his publisher can present as an integrated book.

Mr. Huxley began writing the pieces included in "Man Stands Alone" in 1927, judging from the copyright line. These include every sort of piece, from a gay review of one edition of the British "Who's Who" to a discussion of the sizes of living life.

Of course they do add up, these essays, to something like a connected dissertation. This may be because Mr. Huxley thinks mostly in a certain way, approaches most things in his own manner, and is a scientist interested primarily in biology and the matters connected therewith. But there is nothing in the book quite as interesting as the concluding essay, called "Life Can Be Worth Living," which begins with this paragraph:

"I believe that life can be worth living. I believe this in spite of pain, squalor, cruelty, unhappiness, and death. I do not believe that it is necessarily worth living, but only that for most people it can be."

Mr. Huxley continues his credo. He believes that man can achieve a satisfying purpose in existence. He does not believe there is "an absolute of truth, beauty, morality, or virtue, whether emanating from an external power or imposed by an internal standard."

He believes, too, that there are some questions there is no use for us to ask, because they cannot be answered—these in the field of science as well as in philosophy and religion.

"I do not believe," Mr. Huxley writes, "in the existence of a god or gods. The conception of divinity seems to me, though built up out of a number of real elements of experience, to be a false one, based on the quite unjustifiable postulate that there must be some more or less personal power in control of the world."

He also believes that without a belief in God "men and women may yet possess the mainspring of full and purposive living," partly because of the advance of science. And he believes "that the State exists for the development of individual lives, not individuals for the development of the State."

Browder to Serve Four-Year Term

Surrenders in U. S. Court; $2,000 Check Received in Mails Today

New York, March 25 (AP)—Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist party, surrendered today in federal court to serve a four-year sentence for passport fraud.

His conviction was upheld last month by the U. S. Supreme Court. Browder, who occupied a front row seat in the courtroom beside Robert Minor, his titular successor to Communist leadership in the United States, rose when his name was called by the clerk, and strode to a position near the judge's dais.

A second later, U. S. Marshal Leo Lowenthal escorted him through a doorway to the prisoner's elevator, in which he was taken to the Marshal's office and thence to a cell, to await removal to the Federal House of Detention.

A $2,000 check in payment of the fine imposed on Browder at the time he was sentenced was received in the mail today by George J. H. Folmer, clerk of the U. S. District Court.

The check, drawn on the Amalgamated Bank of New York and signed by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Communist official, was rubber stamped with the words, "Defense Committee of Civil Rights for Communists, 799 Broadway."

Curb Expels Two

New York, March 25 (AP)—The New York Curb Exchange announced today the expulsion of two members on charges of violating rules against splitting commissions. They are Charles R. Powers and Edward F. McCormack, independent floor brokers. Curb officials said the charges grew out of revelations by Jerome Chester Cuppia, a former curb member, in recent hearings before the federal securities and exchange commission at Washington in disciplinary proceedings against the curb.

District Masons Meeting Is Held

Session Reported Biggest Held in Region

One of the largest gatherings of Masons ever to be held at a district convention is expected on Monday, March 31, in the Masonic Temple in Catskill, when the annual convention of the Greene-Ulster Masonic District will be held. More than 200 representatives of the 14 lodges, which comprise the district are expected to attend, and sessions will be held both afternoon and evening in the temple, with a dinner to be held at 6 o'clock in the Saulpaugh Hotel in the village.

This convention is to be a school of instruction as well as for exemplification of degree work, and officers of the various lodges are urged to attend both sessions.

The afternoon session starts at 1:30 o'clock and following brief opening ceremonies under the direction of R. W. Edward M. Henderson, district deputy grand master, the convention will be in charge of R. W. Henry G. Meehan of New York, grand lecturer of the state, assisted by W. Bro. Valentine W. Morrow of Maplecrest, assistant grand lecturer.

Kingston Townsend Club To Hold Regular Session

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Kingston Townsend Club No. 1 will be held Wednesday evening this week at Mechanics' Hall, 11 Henry street.

The new Volunteer Trailblazer's Committee will be introduced and its activities outlined at Wednesday's meeting. Action will be taken regarding the passage of the Townsend Bill, now pending in the New York State Assembly.

Great plans are being made to arrange for an "every-member-attendance" at a Townsend meeting during the month of April. All who have earned the March Seal of Award, are asked to present their membership card to the club secretary. All members who have not yet turned in their 1940 membership cards to be exchanged for the new 1941 card, are asked to do so not later than this meeting, so future seals can be affixed without delay.

Following the business meeting Wednesday evening there will be a "Baby Picture-Guessing Contest", conducted by Miss Catherine Dempsey, chairman of the finance committee and Virgil Bogart, chairman of the public relations committee. Members and friends who desire to enter their baby or childhood pictures are asked to present them to Miss Dempsey before the meeting.

Thousands Are Registering With Employment Unit

Thousands of New York state workers have registered with the New York State Employment Service in response to the recent appeal made by the Office of Production Management to enroll for defense jobs, it was announced today by Kenneth A. Simpson, manager of the local office, located at 243 Fair street.

The drive, which is nationwide, is aimed particularly at two major groups of workers—those who are unemployed and looking for work and those who possess an "urgent-needed skill" but are not using that skill in their present job.

"Despite the fact that the response to date has been very satisfactory," declared Mr. Simpson, "I am sure that there are scores of eligibles here in Kingston who have as yet not registered with our local office. Therefore, I ask all skilled and experienced workers in the following occupations to register with the State Employment Service at once, provided they are not now using these skills in their present jobs."

In aircraft manufacturing—airplane sheet metal workers, airplane woodworkers, inspectors and aeronautical engineers.

In shipbuilding—ship carpenters, loftsmen, boatbuilders, shipfitters, caulkers and marine mechanics. In machine shops and machine manufacturing—machinists, toolmakers, lathe operators, die-makers and tool designers.

Mr. Simpson explained that the Employment Service does not encourage or desire workers now employed in any of these industries to register. He also emphasized that other employed workers with vital defense skills were not being asked to leave their present jobs, but merely to register their qualifications with the nearest office of the State Employment Service, so that they may be called upon if needed in an important defense industry.

"All unemployed men and women able to work are asked to register," said Mr. Simpson, "so that defense officials may have a complete picture of the country's labor resources in terms of availability for job openings that may materialize, or for training in defense occupations."

In a letter to "all American workers," Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Management states: "In the next few months hundreds of thousands more of you will be needed to speed the national defense program in shops, factories, shipyards—to build new plants for industry, shelter for civilian defense workers, camps for soldiers."

"To meet these new defense demands, the Office of Production Management has asked the United States Employment Service to conduct a special nationwide registration of all workers available for defense jobs."

"If you are out of work and looking for a job, register at once at the nearest local employment office."

"If you have a skill useful for defense work but which you are not using in your present job, register at once at the nearest local employment office."

"This registration is voluntary. It is the democratic way. Its success depends upon you. I am confident that each one of you will consider it his personal and patriotic duty to see to it that this registration does succeed."

William S. Knudsen, also associate director general of O. P. M., in a letter to "all holders of defense contracts" said:

"The Office of Production Management expects you to make the maximum practicable use of the public employment service, to inform the local office of that service in advance of your labor requirements, and to refrain from engaging in recruitment efforts outside of your locality. No employer should attempt by any methods to recruit labor from outside his local area or engage in any advertising, local or otherwise, without first consulting with the local public employment office as to the necessity of such action and as to the methods to be employed."

Yugoslavia Signs Pact With Axis

reliable sources said Russia had halted shipments of vital oil supplies to Germany.

Russian army and naval forces, facing German forces in southeast Europe, were reported being strengthened.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden renewed Britain's pledge to fight at the side of Greece "until final victory is won."

Bitterly-expressed opposition to the pact within Yugoslavia indicated that mere signature by the diplomats might not be the final step in clearing the country for Nazi military use.

Streets in Yugoslav cities were littered last night with manifestos accusing Yugoslav leaders of a traitorous sellout; of bringing "certain shameful death for our country"; and threatening death to submissive government leaders.

Actual warfare was almost at a standstill.

Greek troops claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on Italians attacking yesterday near the Viosia river in Albania.

German and British planes took a holiday from intense night raiding.

Reports reaching Belgrade said Germany had secretly dispatched nearly a quarter million troops into Italy to maintain order and prevent a separate Italian-Greek peace which might interfere with Nazi plans in southeast Europe.

In the war at sea, the British admiralty admitted another heavy toll of shipping losses in the "battle of the Atlantic"—23 British and allied craft totalling 71,773 tons in the week ended March 16.

Two Army Fliers Die

San Rafael, Calif., March 25 (AP)—Two army air corps lieutenants were killed today in the collision of their planes over Coalinga, Calif. At Hamilton Field, it was announced that they were Lieut. George K. Williams, reserve officer, 55th air base squadron, and Lieut. Charles J. Engman, member of the 77th air base squadron. Their pursuit group left Hamilton Field this morning on a training flight.

U. S. Will Build

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, estimated today that the federal government would have to build or rent 350 health, recreation and community centers to provide necessary facilities for the mass of migrants displaced by defense work. In testimony before the House committee on interstate migration of destitute workers, McNutt declared that the trek to industrial centers would equal or exceed "the boom of World War No. 1."

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth
Rosenberg
Corry

YESTERDAY, Mrs. Marbury's expedition by plane to a remote island off the North Carolina coast started out half business, half just a lark. Mrs. Marbury wanted to buy an old house, and there was an old house on the island. But her plane has not returned, the caretakers are antagonistic, and Laurence House and his assistant, Mrs. Drossard are planning something. Not to mention the fact that two romances are being dislocated by the presence of Brett Rodman.

Chapter 12

Shots Out Of Nowhere

BRETT RODMAN, suddenly serious, said quickly:

"If there is any danger, no one should go wandering around alone. I still can't believe that any of this is deliberate... except that we would have a house-party," he added ironically. "But intentional or not, no one should take a chance on wandering away. If Ham wants to walk about, I'll go with him."

Eve was irritated as she usually was at one of Brett's pronouncements. He seemed so smug and cocksure. She didn't suspect that he had anything to do with their predicament—it would be such a silly way to sell a house!

Nevertheless, Brett Rodman's calm assumption that they were a lot of helpless sheep and were making the worst of a bad situation, annoyed Eve more and more. Of course, she admitted to herself, Brett had no way of knowing that she was not one of this gilded company which took safety and ease for granted.

She had wondered lately what he would say if she should suddenly admit the truth. Would he admit, then, that he was bewildered as they were? Or would he still feel that they were making a great deal out of nothing? She saw a chance to get even and said swiftly:

"I think you're making too much of this temporary embarrassment, Mr. Rodman. Anyway, if Ham wants to walk his dog, there is nothing on earth to prevent it, is there? Lordy Mac has his rights."

"Hear—heart!" said Neil Brown appreciatively.

But Brett looked at her so disapprovingly that Eve was a little afraid he had gone too far. However, he said only:

"Miss Prentice is reading something into my statement that was not there. Of course I don't believe there's anything to get excited about. Anyone who stays near the house should be safe enough," he added patronizingly.

"But I thought Mr. Millard intended looking over the island. And I don't believe he should be alone, in that case. We should all stick together."

Eve felt as if she had been reprimanded like a child, and she thought that perhaps the others agreed. At any rate, Mr. Howe and Julie and even Gina agreed with Brett Rodman.

Eve looked at her plate disconsolately and felt sorry for herself. Gina was making such a play for Rodman that even Ham had felt slightly uncomfortable. But that—that iceberg—Eve thought fiercely, wanted only to get them away.

He was willing even to humiliate her and Ham to gain his point. Later, when Ham was standing in the hall putting on Lordy Mac's harness, Eve slipped up to him and whispered:

"Listen—that Rodman doesn't know it all. If you want to do a little exploring, I'm with you."

"Right!" Ham whispered back. "But go into the living room and say you're sleepy, or something. Then, instead of going upstairs, slip out through the doorway into the lower hall and meet me at the side of the house. Then we'll go down to the beach together."

Love In Doubt

IT WAS fun to wink at him and agree, but later, slipping out through the door from the hall that led into the transverse hallway, Eve felt a little bit but adventurous. The night had a damp chill that was definitely unfavorable to adventure.

But she resolutely threw a coat over her shoulders and went on to the side door. She started when Ham spoke to her, almost at her elbow.

"Say—this is pretty swell of you, but I'm feeling that I wasn't so smart. I don't mind getting mixed up in anything myself, but I don't want you."

"Nonsense!" said Eve, with a light-heartedness she did not feel. "Rodman is just being too cautious. After this is over, we'll laugh at our jitters."

"Well... maybe—" Ham agreed cautiously.

He led the way down to the beach, keeping Lordy Mac carefully on his leash. That gentleman, finding that he was expected to be quiet, carefully restrained himself, and even refused to do more than growl in his throat as the white cat darted around the house.

Once on the beach, however, Ham slipped the leash and down, precariously, attributing the shortage of workers existing in the occupation in demand. In the rest of the state, excluding New York city, more than half of the offices showed a gain in manufacturing placements from January. Buffalo, placing many young persons as riveters in aircraft manufacturing, reported the greatest gain.

Placements were considerably higher than in February 1940. Jobs filled in manufacturing industries nearly tripled as a result of general industrial activity and the increase in placements with apparel manufacturers which was largely effected by the Dress Industry Placement Unit in New York city. Household placements increased 16 per cent, while jobs filled in other non-manufacturing industries rose 50 per cent.

Placements in public employment numbered 2,031, a decrease of 49 per cent from January. The decline was rather general throughout the state with the greatest drop occurring in Watertown, where hiring for construction of army cantonments has passed its peak.

The Special Junior Sections of you ask me that question?" she parried.

"Because—she likes you. And she—she may have said something she wouldn't say to me," Ham went on unhappily. "I know I'm not much to look at," he added humbly, "compared to Neil or to Brett Rodman. And I don't know much about anything—even houses. But I've loved Gina for so long."

"I understand, Ham," Eve could not trust herself to say more for the moment. She herself had noticed the increasing amount of time Gina and Brett managed to be together. But if Ham were noticing Gina's behavior, too, perhaps it was more serious than she had thought. She felt the cold of the night wind suddenly and pulled her coat more tightly around her shoulders.

"I'll talk to Gina, she promised the disconsolate young man at her side. "I know she likes you, Ham—you remember she protested against your coming out here tonight?"

"That's right, she did!" In Ham's voice was all the wonder of an explorer finding a new world. "While I led you on," Eve continued with a remorseful laugh. "But come on—we must get back now—and certainly the beach is quiet enough."

Run For Life

THERE was a soft swishing noise and a popping sound that mingled with the beat of the sea on the shore. Eve wouldn't have been quite sure she heard it, except that Ham's hand was against her elbow and he urged her quickly:

"Lie down—flat on the sand. Here—Lordy! Down!"

"But what—what was it?" Eve asked. The sand was cool against her fingers, and damp from so much rain.

"Somebody shooting at us, I think. Keep down." Again there was a soft, popping noise and this time Eve saw a little spurt of sand shoot up toward the sky. All at once she began to tremble violently.

"Steady—steady! It's just someone up at the house—trying to be smart." Nevertheless his arm was around her shoulder, and he didn't sound too reassuring. For how long they crouched there, Eve could not tell.

But there were no more noises and finally Ham asked her if she thought she could run for it. Eve agreed, with no feeling one way or the other.

Ham locked her arms in his and with the same gesture that brought them to their feet, he started to run. They did not stop until they reached the front porch and pounded up it, bursting in the front door. The others came out of the living room hurriedly; Julie ran over to Eve.

"Oh, my dear! You're as white as a ghost. What is it?"

Eve could only bury her head in Julie's comforting shoulder, but Ham, with Gina clinging to his arm, managed to say:

"Let's all get back in the living room." They turned and followed without objection, and then Ham said suddenly, "Has anyone left this room?"

For a minute no one answered. Then Neil cleared his throat and spoke.

"Yes, I did. I went upstairs to get my pipe and to have a look around for Eve. I was uneasy about her—I tapped on her door, but she didn't answer. And I came down again. I was about to speak to Mrs. Emerson about it when we heard you running."

"I went outside for a breath of air, and to see if it was raining," Jim Drossard put in. "But there was such a heavy mist I didn't stay long."

"No—you came right back," Mr. Howe agreed. "What's the trouble, Millard? You haven't told us yet."

"We were shot at—" Ham paused and was gratified by the astounded faces of his listeners. "Eve and I decided to give Lordy Mac a run on the beach," he confessed. "We didn't think all this hush-hush business was necessary. Well," he admitted grimly, "we were wrong. Somebody shot at us—not once but twice, and the shots came uncomfortably close."

"We know now that there's no one on the island except ourselves and the Jacksons. If you were all here in this room or accounted for, it must be the Jacksons."

"Odd we didn't hear the shots," Mr. Howe said. "But the fire is cracking so, we might have confused the noises." He glanced at Jim Drossard and as quickly glanced away. "Well—anyway, it's over. Now the question is—who did fire the shots?"

"One of the Jacksons," said Julie positively. "I've never liked that woman. And she said she didn't want us around. If we could have got away the first day, it might have been all right. But as it is, she may have decided to do us in, one by one."

"But don't you think we should have the Jacksons in here and question them?" asked Mrs. Marbury. "Really—if they don't want us."

"You'd ask them if they shot at Millard and Miss Prentice?" the lawyer interposed smoothly. "Oh, no, my dear Mrs. Marbury. If they really have got to the point where they will stop at nothing to get rid of us, we must remember one thing."

"And what is that?" said Neil sharply.

"There's very little we can do about it—at the moment," the lawyer said with finality.

Boston—Lonely British soldiers can get no advice, but they can get mail—with the help of the city of Boston.

British officers interned in a German prison camp and soldiers stationed in Boston, England, wrote "His Worship" Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, asking him to obtain some "good lookers" as correspondents.

Director of Public Celebration Louis J. Brems, operating the "postoffice," says letters are coming in fast and being forwarded—uncensored at this end at least.

Border War

Topeka, Kas.—The state legislature has a custom of making members buy a barrel of Kansas apples for the commission of various infractions.

But the apples the three-man delegation from Wichita brought for introducing too many bills were not eaten. Instead they were tossed at the donors. They were "Missouri Pippins."

Annual Affair

Wellman, Ia.—Mrs. Patience Brown and Collett Sitter were together Monday just as they have been each March 24 for the last 86 years. Washington county's oldest twins, they never have missed celebrating their birthday together.

Neligh, Neb.—A flock of geese demonstrated what a "wild goose chase" is.

They mistook the new tin roof of a grain company elevator for a body of water and tried to land on it.

Next night they came back and tried again.

Nazi Aircraft Wanted

To encourage contributions to war funds, Bangalore, India, has asked the Air Ministry in London to send a wrecked Nazi aircraft for exhibition. The Ministry is said to be willing if shipping space can be found and similar requests do not become too numerous.

Ferry to Resume Trips Wednesday

'Kingston' Will Leave City at 7 A. M.

Ferry service between Kingston and Rhinebeck, which had been suspended during the winter months owing to ice conditions will be resumed Wednesday morning when at 7 o'clock the ferry 'Kingston' will leave Kingston on its first trip of the season across the Hudson river.

Owing to the milder temperatures during the past several weeks the ice in the Rondout creek has been breaking gradually and moving out, and all danger of an ice gorge forming at the mouth of the creek is now ended.

The main creek between the mouth and Edenville is now clear of ice, although there is still ice in the slips. The Hudson river is filled with moving ice, but it is not expected that the ferry will have any difficulty in keeping close to schedule.

Sorosis Studies Machine Age

The meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Kaprelian, 261 Flatbush avenue. After the regular business meeting Mrs. Lorraine B. Wood presented a paper on "Machine Age Development" in the year's study of "The Drama." She reviewed the history of the motion picture industry dwelling on such dates as 1903 when "The Great Train Robbery" appeared; 1927 when talking pictures made their debut and the most recent development, technicolor, followed closely by television. This latest triumph, according to Mrs. Wood, removed the last obstacle to the enjoyment of drama at a distance. She said that it is a far cry from the $2,000,000 film of 30 years ago to the $2,000,000.00 product of today, and added that it is not surprising that 276 different industries now depend on movie production. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Milling, Jr., at which time Robert Elwyn will speak to the members on "The Summer Theatre."

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a Woman," "The New Book of Social Usage," etc.)

GIRLS COMPLAIN TO EMILY POST THAT MEN SENDING CORSAGES DON'T CONSIDER COLOR OF DRESS TO BE WORN.

Oh men! Oh boys! Please listen! There is much complaint these days in my letters about you on the subject of flowers—not about those you don't send to your girl friends, but about those you do. This may sound ungrateful of the girls but read on to see whether you are guilty of causing anything so distressing as the situation described by one mother:

"I've no doubt men and boys mean well, but won't you please write something to them about the thoughtless way they have of sending girls corsages to wear with their evening dresses without finding out first what color dress the girl is wearing. My daughter has had this happen to her several times in the past year and it always causes so much commotion around the house, when she has to wear an old dress again instead of her new one, that she leaves the family as completely upset as she is herself. Last night she was in tears because she had to wear an old dress for the sixth time so she could wear the flowers, and for the sixth time hang her lovely new orange-colored dress back in the closet! All because he will send pink roses."

Therefore, men and boys, if you are thinking of sending a girl flowers to wear when she is going out with you, won't you please ask her first what color she is going to wear—or better still, ask her what flowers would look best on the dress she is wearing. If you can't find out, then under most circumstances gardenias are safe—unless she is one of the very few who dislike their odor. (If you don't know, you'd better find out.)

The Clergyman Is Also Bride's Father

Dear Mrs. Post: My father is going to marry me in his own church. There will be no other minister to assist. May father walk in with me and then take his place and proceed with the ceremony? And would he walk in in his vestments or put them on after he reaches the front of the church? Don't tell me to ask father because he told me to ask you.

Answer: I could name several weddings at which the clergyman who was the bride's father walked up the aisle with his daughter—the groom and his bride man having meanwhile walked in from the vestry alone. Usually, however, he stands waiting for his daughter and her brother—or other near man relative—who walks up the aisle with her and then takes his place in one of the front pews and stays there. The father then gives his daughter in marriage by merely putting her hand into that of the groom. If your father does walk with you, he of course wears his vestments—since he at once takes his place facing the congregation and begins the ceremony. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

St. Mary's Cagers Defeat Holy Name, 46-23 to Win Crown

McConnell Scores 11 as St. Mary's Show Power Again

Coughlin and Murphy Also High for Winning Club; Knights, St. Peter's Win Catholic Games

Dick McConnell, the Freeman's choice for All-DUSO center on the 1940-41 team, appeared with St. Mary's cagers in the Catholic Basketball League last night and helped the club to put the finishing touches by trimming Holy Name by 46 to 23. By winning last night the Saints have clinched the loop title.

After turning in some sensational performances with the Maroon and White quintet McConnell jumped in with the Saints and dumped in 11 markers last night to help turn back Holy Name in rather easy fashion.

Besides the efforts of McConnell, Coughlin and Murphy were in scoring form and tossed in 11 and 10 points respectively. Letus collected six for the losers. St. Mary's led at half time by 25 to 11 and continued its comfortable lead throughout the third and fourth sessions.

Although the St. Mary's cagers annexed the title last night the Knights and St. Peter's quintets didn't lose any time in chalking up impressive victories. St. Peter's came through to turn back St. Joseph's Five by 51 to 29. The Knights ramblod through St. Colman's team by 34 to 19.

Dugan and McGrane tossed in 16 apiece for St. Peter's as the club stormed through their high-scoring opponents. Jimmy Ashdown, the main threat of St. Joseph's, kept his teammates from further defeat by collecting 15 markers.

Jimmy Turk was the big gun for the Knights as he fired away for 14. Flanagan, Gilday and Joe Ausiano accounted for 18 points. J. Henebery scored seven for the East Kingston club. The Knights took a commanding 24 to 5 lead in the first half.

M.J.M. All-Stars Conclude With Perfect Record

The Myron J. Michael School cagers concluded a perfect season of eight straight victories Friday afternoon of last week by defeating the Faculty Five by 40 to 35. Other teams dropping games to the M. J. M. quintet included the Hi-Y, Y-Leaders, Forst Five and the Flatbush cagers. The Stars collected 292 markers to their opponents 232 for the season. With two excellent seasons behind them the M. J. M. All Stars are looking forward to next season with high hopes. Players on the team from left to right in the first row are Dan McGrane, Frank Sass, Joseph Jordan and Jim Dugan; in the second row are Clyde Wonderly, Jr., Don Riehl, "Rocky" Maxon and Francis Fatum; standing in back are Coach and Director Ed Sylvester and "Hy" Rowland. Standing on the extreme left is Jim Fitzgerald, 8th year foul shooting champ; on the right is Bill Wrigg, 9th year foul shooting champ.

Cage Backboard Displeases Coaches

Holman Not to Allow Use of Fan-Shaped Board

New York, March 25 (AP)—The new fan-shaped basketball backboard which appeared on some courts this season seems to be good for an argument wherever coaches gather.

That's the only subject that produced any real differences of opinion yesterday when the National Association of Basketball Coaches opened its two-day convention. Nat Holman of the College of the City of New York said he wouldn't permit his teams to play rivals that use it next year. Jack Gardner, Kansas State coach, said the fan-shaped board hadn't proved satisfactory in its trial in the Big Six Conference this season.

The outcome of yesterday's argument was that the rules committee suggested that the backboard be six feet by four feet, with no options as to its shape, but that didn't mean all the coaches were convinced. The rules proposals will come up for a vote of the convention today and, if approved, will be presented to the national rules committee at Kansas City next week.

Two Teams Tied For Cage Playoffs

Texans and Forsts Win Opening Games

The Texans and Forsts moved into the finals for the playoffs of the Junior City Basketball League Saturday with triumphs over the Columbians and Heppner (Sars). The scores were 25-16 and 35 to 24. It was the 12th straight for Forsts.

Parslow, Olivet and Rowland did all the scoring for the Texans in the game with the Columbians. Parslow scored 12 points. Bozak accounted for 12 of the losers' markers. Although Zelle collected 13 for the Heppner Stars the club lost to Forsts, the powerhouse of the junior loop. Bloom dumped in a dozen points for the winners.

The scores: Texans (25)—Flicker 0, Parslow 12, Rowland 4, Ross 0, Baines 0, Sickler 0, Olivet 9, Berinato 0, Everett 0; Columbians (16)—Carlson 0, Shattan 3, Mellert 0, Bozak 12, Lindsey 0, Riehl 1, Amato 0. Blackbirds Win Cage Tournament

Record Turnout of 18,377 at Madison Square

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 25 (AP)—When you consider Long Island University's regular-season record, you aren't surprised that the Blackbirds won the National Intercollegiate Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden for the second time in three years.

In the course of winning 23 of 25 games, the Blackbirds faced varied opposition, such as Oregon, Rice, Michigan State, Duquesne, De Paul, Butler and Toledo, as well as local rivals. By the time they had gone through that, they had experienced practically everything they would come up against in an eight-team tournament.

70,862 Attend Games
Besides, they were quite accustomed to those big Garden crowds, whereas boys from smaller places, who were very disturbed by the 70,826 fans who watched the four nights of tournament play and broke the Garden record at three successive sessions.

Long Island had to whip a fine team in the final round, Ohio University, 56 to 42, with a second-half rally. Before that, the Blackbirds had disposed of little Westminster and Seton Hall, which had won 43 games in a row before bumping into L. I. U.

Long Island's long shots kept them in the game last night until the Bobcats, who led 25-21 at the half, tired from the fast pace.

City College of New York last night walloped Seton Hall, 42-27, in the third-place game. The spectators set a record 18,377 getting into the Garden last night.

Jim Dykes Keeps Heckling Novikoff

Cub Rookie Has Collected Only Three Hits

Los Angeles, March 25 (AP)—Jimmy Dykes is just an "old meanie" for heckling Lou Novikoff, a fence-busting genius while in the minors, and the Chicago Cubs don't care who knows it.

The caustic Irish pilot of the White Sox has been giving the young and not-so-mad Russian "the business" every time the two cross-town rivals get together for an exhibition game.

"Jockey" Dykes put a saddle on the singing, harmonica-playing Cub rookies in the first game, and has been riding him ever since. Nettle by or not by Dykes' jibes, Novikoff nevertheless has collected a meager three hits in 16 official times at bat in four games, which is poor work, especially for Novikoff, in view of his impressive college league record.

Dykes' tactics have lifted the spring series from mere exhibition games to a bitter battle between the two teams for supremacy in pre-season competition.

Favorites for Throne

Brookline, Mass., March 25 (AP)—Two Rollins College students, ranked the foremost favorites to succeed to the vacant tennis throne of Alice Marble, appeared today to face the logical choices to face each other in the finals of the women's national indoor tennis championship. Top-seeded Pauline Betz of Los Angeles already has reached the quarter-final bracket, and second-seeded Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, who drew a bye in the first round, seemed

Strange Goings-On

What went on at Detroit the other night, anyway? One announcer said, "One of the fighters has one foot off the ground." Another discovered that one of the boys was holding the other six feet away from him. Our favorite speller yelled "Simon has two left eyes," when all the time we thought it was two left feet Abe was afflicted with. . . . Anyway, Papa Simon, way up in the Bronx, sure hoisted Abe's feelings by stomping off to the movies just before the main bout went on. . . . TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Here's a hint for those who believe the Brooklyn Dodgers have given up on Babe Phelps, the big catcher who failed to put in an appearance at training camp. Phelps wired yesterday he was ready to report. In reply, Secretary John McDonald told him he could join the Montreal "farm" club at Macon, Ga., and get into shape at his own expense. But, McDonald added, "we wired that we'd try to get him a rate at the hotel."

Fort Myers, Fla.—Lou Boudreau, Cleveland's crack shortstop, is expected to remain out of action until the club breaks camp here Friday. He sprained an ankle before yesterday's game with the Phillies.

Anaheim, Calif.—No matter what happens to the White Sox in today's game with the Athletics, it can't be much worse for Jess Dugheim, Chicago rookie hurler. He was struck in the face by a batted ball in hitting practice, retired to the bench and was hit on the head by a foul ball during the game. He called it a day and retired to the clubhouse while his mates took an 18-1 plastering from the Cubs.

Crouch at Starter

Miami Beach, Fla.—With Hugh Mulcahy in the army and Kirby Hughes sold to Brooklyn, Bill Crouch may be the star pitcher the Phillies always seem to have on their roster. He turned in his third fine pitching trick of the exhibition season yesterday, shutting out Cleveland with three hits in five innings.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Young Phil Rizzuto is looking very good in the New York Yankees' infield and at the plate, but he's still a problem for Red Rolfe, the veteran shortstop. Red explains he and Frank Crosetti played together seven years, and each knew just what the other would be doing in any situation, but he can't try unorthodox plays with Rizzuto yet.

Boston Breaks Camp

Sarasota, Fla.—The Boston Red Sox will break camp after today's game with Kansas City and start for home by way of Miami and Cuba. Joe Cronin plans to take 25 men, leaving the others to work out with the Louisville club at Bradenton. The team will be reunited at Dothan, Ala., on the swing north.

Miami, Fla.—The New York Giants' 1941 training season has been particularly annoying, but it hasn't broken the team's spirit. Despite the latest affliction, colds that have laid low four players, the Giants were full of dash and fire in yesterday's workout. Part of that was due to the return of Bill Jurgens, who has shown much confidence since doctors told him a new treatment would do away with his dizzy spells.

Los Angeles—Jimmy Wilson, Chicago Cubs' manager who is awaiting a visit from Larry MacPhail of Brooklyn, said he is ready to "trade anybody on the club." Bill Lee and Hank Leibert, both unsigned, are regarded the most likely trading material, and Babe Phelps as the player the Cubs may get. Chicago's main needs are a right-handed pitcher, a first baseman who can hit and a catcher.

Shines in Debut

Charley "Red" Ruffing, considered as the No. 1 question mark and the No. 1 hopeful of the New York Yankees' pitching staff, settled a few doubts of his critics Sunday afternoon at St. Petersburg, Fla., when he twirled three scoreless innings against the St. Louis Cardinals. Ruffing permitted two hits and appeared to have a lot of stuff for his initial performance of the spring season. Although getting along in years Ruffing may be the difference between a pennant and a runner-up in the American League. Incidentally, the Yanks finally took that game from the Redbirds by 3 to 2.

Cardinals Plagued By Patched Infield In Spring Contests

Billy Southworth Attempts to Get a Positive Line on Infield Players; New Combination

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 25 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals are being plagued again by the same weakness that has characterized their efforts for several years—an uncertain infield.

Manager Billy Southworth is having such difficulty at this late stage in finding the right combination that some of the club's most ardent boosters are cooling off rapidly.

Early in the training grind Southworth at least hoped his troubles had been dissolved by the simple process of planting Steve Mesner, the .341 hitting rookie and shifting Jimmie Brown over from San Diego on third base to second, with the string-bean Martin Marion, between them, at short.

It looked like a deal, but a return inspection appears to reveal a serious hitch.

In yesterday's game here against Detroit, Brown was back at his old third base post, Frank Crespi from Rochester was at second and Mesner was riding the bench. Again it was typical patched-up St. Louis infield—the sort that does not capture pennants—so it might be as well to start concentrating on Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the annual spring guessing game.

Aid to Britain Statement Made By Mrs. Teller

Mrs. Myron S. Teller, president of the local chapter of Bundles for Britain, issued the following statement in a special executive meeting held Monday at the local headquarters 302 Fair street.

"The efforts of Bundles for Britain to help alleviate suffering in bomb torn England are vital. The contribution of clothing to the civilian population, the can- tents to distribute food, the ambulances and medical supplies for the wounded, and the donations to the many hospitals wrecked by German bombers, are all part of the great task Bundles for Britain has accepted.

"The earnestness with which the people of the United States have flung themselves into British relief work gives evidence of our sympathy for the British cause. Bundles for Britain is one medium through which every man, woman and child can give expression to this sympathy. Here is a chance for every individual to 'do something.' Bundles for Britain can be your organization; it can be your way of aiding. No matter how small or large your contribution is, Bundles for Britain can use it to good advantage for the cause that you believe in. The phenomenal growth of Bundles (866 branches) occurred because thousands of people wanted just such a way to realize their opportunity to help Great Britain. The good-will of the American people is warmly appreciated by the Britishers. Unsolicited letters from civilians, soldiers and seamen, tell the gratefulness of the recipients, and show a high morale and the splendid faith they have in the principles the British people stand by.

"The needs of Britain increase daily, the task that Bundles for Britain has assumed swells proportionately. There can be no fading of interest, no slacking of the job that we have taken up. 'There'll always be an England,' and each of us can help in some small way to keep alive this spirit. Tomorrow, next month and next year there'll be an England if you will do your utmost to make it so.

"In your own community you can serve. On Saturday, April 5, Bundles for Britain is having an afternoon party at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Your attendance will contribute towards the purchase of yarn for the enlisted forces and of medical supplies for inadequately equipped hospitals.

"There is an opportunity to help Britain. It is one way in which you can show your admiration for the courageous nation that is withstanding a severe test. Reservations for a table of cards may be made with Mrs. A. H. Chambers, telephone 2637. Those not desiring to play are invited to stop in the lounge for tea.

Dr. Holcomb Made Chairman of Early Diagnosis Drive

Only when the tuberculin test and the chest X-ray are accepted by the public as matter-of-course precautionary measures against tuberculosis can the next great advance in the control of the disease be made, according to Dr. Frederic Holcomb, who today was appointed chairman of the Early Diagnosis Campaign of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health by Joseph M. Fowler.

The campaign, which will open on April 1 and continue throughout the month, will stress the necessity and economy of finding tuberculosis in its earliest, most easily curable stages.

Similar campaigns will be held in thousands of communities throughout the country by other tuberculosis associations.

Dr. Holcomb will immediately select his committee members, and plans for the month-long campaign will get under way.

"The tuberculin test is a simple skin test which shows whether or not tuberculosis germs are in the body. The chest X-ray, which should be taken immediately of all persons who react positively to the tuberculin test, will show if the disease has actively started in the body," said Dr. Holcomb. "If we can convince the public of the importance of the modern diagnostic methods for tuberculosis, then we will be able to pass the next milestone in our year-round fight against this disease."
